

Political Thought for Colonization and Decolonization

Year: 2022/2023

Semester: Winter-Spring

Credits: 9

Hours: 75 (72 + 3)

Professor: Prof. Tommaso Visone <https://www.unilink.it/en/university/teaching-staff/tommaso-visone>

Level : Graduate

Course Description:

Addressed to International Cooperation students, this course aims to: 1) analyze the main discourses that characterized the self-narration(s) that Europeans (and, since XIX century, also “Americans”) built on their hegemonic world-action after 1492; 2) deepen postcolonial and decolonial discourses, focusing on the use of concepts such as civilization, colonization, sovereignty, hegemony, nationalism, barbarism, identity, etc.; 3) teach students to recognize “colonial”, “post-colonial” and “de-colonial” narrations as products of specific context(s) marked by peculiar conflicts/debates and 4) introduce critically students to a critical theory of geography and cultural representations, analyzing concepts such as The East, the West, Europe, Asia, America, Latin-America, ecc.

Learning outcomes:

The aim is that at the end of this course, the students will:

- 1) Be familiar with some of the most important events, concepts and texts in the history of colonial, post colonial and decolonial thought.
- 2) Have the reflexive and critical ability to engage different historical discourses and contexts.
- 3) Analyze contemporary issues in the light of the critical approaches debated in the course (as “geopolitics of knowledge”; “cancel culture”, etc.).
- 4) Develop their own reasoned views on the theoretical and political issues involved.

Grading Policy:

Three possibilities in order to pass the exam: 1) Final Oral exam (three books, parts A, B, C) or 2) half oral exam (two books parts A and B) an assignment 3) one third via oral exam (one book part A), one third with an assignment and one third with a laboratory’s presentation.

Assignment: Essay of 3000 words - equivalent of maximum 10 pages (Times New Roman, size 12) - on a topic chosen from a set of questions shared with you during the course. This is valid for each assignment.

Laboratory’s Presentation: Propose a relevant topic with an abstract and, after the schedule, hold a 30 minutes presentation for all the class. Then answer to colleagues and professor questions. F.A.Q.: You can propose your topic only after the first five class as attending student and at least one months before the end of the course. Remember that there are few slots, thus who arrives first takes it. You can do it in couple with a colleague.
